The 3 hour lectures were long and painful with no break. Much of the class was spent copying long and wordy definitions down from the board without Dr. Pearson explaining exactly what they meant

Comment on the reading assignments.

They were unnecessary and were exactly what was covered in class the next day. If you were the kind of person who liked to know what was going on ahead of time, then they would be helpful, but were not at all necessary or helpful for me.

Comment on written assignments and/or problem sets. (Did they help you prepare for the exams or quizzes? Were they manageable?)

The problem sets did help prepare for the midterm and final. I hated that we had no access to practice problems to prepare for tests, since our textbook had no problems and there weren't easily accessible equivalents anywhere online.

OVERALL COURSE RATING (1 = very poor; 5 = outstanding)	NA	1	2	X	3	4	5

Comment on the strengths and weaknesses of this course. How could it be improved?

The strength of this course is that it can improve my preciseness of my logical thinking. The weakness of this course is that the content in this course was not that practical. My advice is to increase more sections to let us use the things we learn.

Would you recommend this course?

Yes, you may feel it is not that happy after finishing this course, because you may not feel it is very interesting or useful, but you still will learn something special, and the only way is to learn and feel it yourself.

Comment on the reading assignments.

It does help you if you do not learn well in class, but the help is limited, and you have to spend much more time than the time in class. So the best way of taking this course easier and efficient is trying to do well in class.

Comment on written assignments and/or problem sets. (Did they help you prepare for the exams or quizzes? Were they manageable?)

Yes, it did, but you still need more practice and deeper comprehension to the course in order to do well in the exams and quizzes. They were not manageable and clear, and it does need to improve, but maybe this is one of the challenging parts that needs to finish well by ourselves.

Comment on the strengths and weaknesses of this course. How could it be improved?

I believe this course was very well designed, and I had no issue following the subject matter in almost all cases--any time that was not the case it was easily solved by reviewing my notes--so overall I would say it a great success. I cannot think of any glaring weaknesses, but I think it could be slightly improved by formatting the class website with a forum of some kind to organize study groups (which could of course be viewable so as to prevent cheating)... though this is more of a personal view from someone who never found a study group.

Would you recommend this course?

Yes! I thought it was very fun, though challenging, and was some real mental acrobatics! I will admit, however, that I am not sure as to what field of study it would be useful in aside from philosophy, so that would somewhat limit my recommendation, depending on what I thought someone was looking for in a class.

Comment on the reading assignments.

I did not feel the reading to be especially helpful, as someone who took decent-to-good notes, but they were useful when needing consultation, and gave something of a foot-in-the-door to the next classes' topic.

Comment on written assignments and/or problem sets. (Did they help you prepare for the exams or quizzes? Were they manageable?)

The problem sets were tough! I was rather irresponsible with them, however, so had I attempted an earlier start and worked a bit more thoroughly I doubt they would have given me quite so much trouble. I was also rather troubled by my lack of a study group... but either way I thought they were very well put together overall! And getting a problem after agonizing over it for a while was very rewarding. They were something of an emotional roller-coaster, to be honest.

Comment on the strengths and weaknesses of this course. How could it be improved?

The difficulty lies primarily in the shortness of the term: it is fast paced for this course where time is needed to fully assimilate information. Strengths: great instructor who fully masters his subject, clear and easy to understand, willing to help and listen
 Weaknesses: none

The TA answered many questions during sections. He helped by providing examples and practice problems to help clarify specific questions and topics. Some sections were group reviews which encouraged everyone to help one another, which was very helpful.

Comment?	Sections were great place to ask questions and get clarification from the TA and fellow classmates, since so much material was covered during 3 hour lectures it helped getting the perspective of other students on the topics presented.

Comment on the strengths and weaknesses of this course. How could it be improved?

Good: Professor is very helpful and really likes what he teaches, which makes me want to learn more! He even opens extra office hours before the finals. Nelson is also very patient and nice. Bad: I feel that the concepts are the most difficult to digest in this course. Perhaps spending more time explicating and contextualising them would help a lot.

Would you recommend this course?

I would recommend it strongly to whoever I know is interested in solving problems. I would be honest and say that it would be very difficult and torturing for those who do not want to work hard in this class.
